Architecture is the art and practice of designing and constructing structures.