Double-entry bookkeeping

- Every transaction is entered twice, into at least two separate accounts

- There are 5 standard accounts, Assets, Capital, Liabilities, Revenues, and Expenses

- This ensures the mechanical process of entering a transaction is done in two distinct ways

- If the accounting equation is not satisfied, then we have a contradiction